

Greg Hallstrom, US Army LTC (Retired), CPP, ISP
Executive Director

Born and raised North of Seattle in Washington state, I received my Bachelors degree at the University of New York and a Masters Degree in Security Management from Webster University. After retiring from the US Army as a Lieutenant Colonel my second career was managing a security department at the University of New Mexico. Along the way, I became a Certified Protection Professional (CPP) with ASIS and a certified Industrial Security Professional (ISP) with NCMS.

I have been active in many church and church organizations as I moved around the world. My wife of 52 years and children all live in Albuquerque. I helped found and support three charitable nonprofit corporations over the last 27 years, the latest one is the New Mexico Ramp Project building wheelchair ramps throughout New Mexico.